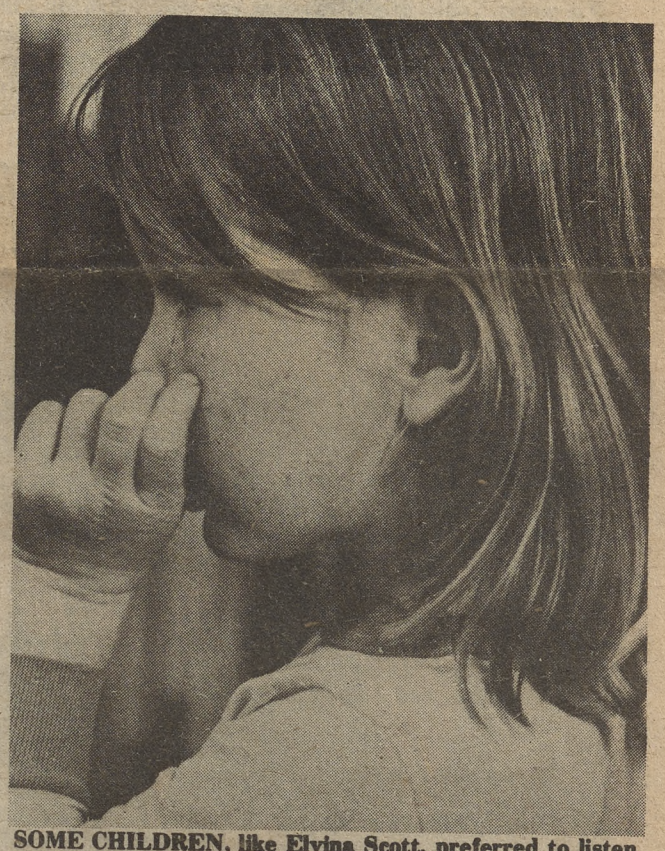
Pajama story hour

Nothing captivates a youngster like an animated storyteller. In March, librarians at the Carmel Valley branch started hosting a "pajama story hour" one night each month.

Last week, the second story hour, only eight youngsters came. In March, more than 30 came to listen.

"We'll give it one more try," said Rickie Meehling, the head librarian. She said children and parents from Tularcitos School were not notified early enough and that may have been responsible for the small turnout.

No date has been scheduled yet, however, for the May story hour.



SOME CHILDREN, like Elvina Scott, preferred to listen stoically until the story was completed. Then they would flash a grin and await the next tale.

To save farmland

Advisory panel backs land preservation tax

By KEN PETERSON

THE CARMEL Valley Master Plan Committee has unanimously endorsed a plan to tax Valley residents and use the money to buy development rights on 375 acres of agricultural land in the Valley.

If adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and the voters, the plan will allow the land to remain in agricultural use and be taxed as farmland and not on its development potential.

The committee also endorsed a building permit fee on all new Valley construction at its meeting on Thursday, April 13. Money from the fee also would go toward purchase of development rights on farmland. No monetary amount was suggested by the panel.

Committee member Jack Van Zander of Bestor Engineers Inc. argued that there is little agricultural land left "but that's what gives Carmel Valley its rural character. Even if it's broken up into 2.5-acre lots, it would be gone. And every one you lose makes the rest more vulnerable."

He estimated that it might cost up to $20,000 per acre to acquire the development rights. A tax rate of 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation was mentioned as being sufficient to finance the acquisitions over a 30-year period.

Regardless of the exact figures, committee member Earl Moser said, "Let's go ahead without worrying about the financing."

About $100 on $80,000 home

Details of the financing would have to be established before calling a special assessment district election.

Luis Wolter, whose 50-acre parcel adjacent to Quail Lodge and Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club is of prime concern to the committee, is interested in the idea, but skeptical about it ever coming to pass.

"It sounds good, but I'd have to see it working," Wolter said on Monday. "It could be appealing—if the price is right and the tax situation is changed."

Wolter pointed out that his land is attractive to developers "because everybody wants to live near a golf course." He estimated that his land is worth $20,000 per acre for development.

"If they (the assessment district) will pay me $15,000 an acre" and the taxing policies are changed to assess the land only on agricultural use, he said the prospect "sounds great to help the farmland."

As it stands now, it is "harder and harder every year to stay in farming," Wolter said. "If I have a couple bad years, I might get forced into something."

If he had a choice, Wolter added, he would prefer to keep farming his land.

ANOTHER committee recommendation is that alternative methods of financing the acquisitions be explored. According to Corky Matthews, who was on the land use subcommittee, "There are some innovative ideas we just aren't familiar with."

She was not optimistic about the possibility of a new 50 cent property tax being approved. But, she noted later, a study of the public costs if the land is developed—new roads, sewers, burdens on schools—might make protection of the land more attractive to voters.

Moser pointed out that it wouldn't be necessary to acquire all the farmland at once. The development rights could be purchased only when it appears the land might be acquired for residential or commercial development.

Committee member Melvin Steckler pointed out that Valley residents "pay more for fire protection" than they would to preserve farmland under the proposal.

He also commented that, with new development, the tax share per property owner would drop.

"This could be justified as a very prudent investment," Steckler said, since preser-

'Good Egg' awards presentation next week

In the spring, thoughts of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce turn to the "Good Egg" award. The award was established in 1953 for residents who have made a significant contribution of volunteer time for the improvement and betterment of the Valley.

Previous winners form the nominating committee which met for a luncheon meeting, conducted by Lou Gardner, last week at the Los Laureles Lodge. The 1977 recipients will be named at the April 29 chamber dinner.

The Walkers' scrumptious luau

If a recent Valley breeze brought you the tantalizing aroma of chicken cooking in coconut cream, baked bananas, lau lau (salmon, ham and spinach baked in ti leaves) and poi, it was coming from the delightful luau given at the home of Mrs. Philip Walker on Flight Road.

Antherium and ti leaves flown from the islands centered a table decorated with sea shells and fishnet where the seated guests included; Clarence Shannon of Nelson, British Columbia, Commander and Mrs. Clifford Tomlin, Colonel and Mrs. Robert Rudat, Mrs. Richard Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Wilson, Jay Irvine and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wells.

Kathryn entertained with a cocktail party earlier in the week for Mr. and Mrs. John Keatts of Pomeroy, Wash. Meeting her houseguests were Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fellow, Mrs. Irwin Johnson, Mrs. Getty Fairchild, Mrs. John Kvenild, Mrs. Richard Dick and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Grant.

Little league washed out

Carmel Valley Little League officials posted opening day box scores of "Weather: 4, CVLL: 0" following Saturday's daylong downpour which cancelled four games and postponed festivities until this Saturday beginning at noon.

The Little League board of directors—Jim Shakal, president; Kathy Sparr, vice president; Nancy Dice, secretary; Bob Wirtz, treasurer; and Joel Trudeau, player agent—invite the public to attend the opening day ceremonies as well as games played each week night and all day Saturday at the ballpark on Paso Hondo.

Bloodmobile is due in Village May 3

If you have not been contacted by telephone or by volunteers, won't you pick up the phone now and call Mrs. Thomas (Marjorie) McKiernon 659-2833 to make a date to give blood.

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its annual spring stop at a new location, the Carmel Valley Community Chapel on Village Drive between 3 and 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 3. Anyone 18 or older (17 with adult permission) can donate blood.

Jennifer Johnson wins poster contest

"Everybody's Going" was the theme suggested for the 1978 Fiesta de los Amigos poster competition among Tularcitos students. The event is scheduled on May 6 at the Holman Ranch.

Sponsored by the Carmel Valley Women's Club, the fiesta sponsors, the posters were judged last week with prizes awarded to Jennifer Johnson ($5, first prize); Tricia Ward ($3, second prize); and Steve Warren ($2, third prize).

Named Honorable Mention were the works of Kari Nations, Susan Verde and Brenna Gardner. The awards were presented by Mrs. Irwin T. Johnson, president of the women's club.

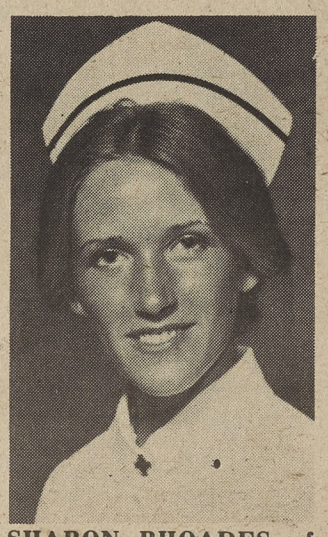
Sharon Rhodes gets nursing degree

Sharon Rhoades, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Rhoades of Carmel Valley, will be graduated with honors next month from the Bridgeport Hospital School of Nursing in Bridgeport, Conn.

Miss Rhoades will complete her three-year registered nurses program and be graduated May 25. Her grandmother, Lydia Holman, was graduated from the same school in 1916.

Miss Rhoades attended Tularcitos and Middle School. She was graduated from Carmel High School in 1975 and received the $1,000 Carmel Builder's Supply scholarship offered each year by J. O. Handley, owner of the firm.

After graduation, Miss Rhoades plans to return to the Monterey Peninsula as a nurse and study for her bachelor of science degree.



SHARON RHOADES of Carmel Valley will graduate from nursing school in May.

Editorial

A glimmer of hope

By Al Eisner

THERE MAY BE a glimmer of hope for the future of Carmel Valley if the citizens of the area support the efforts of the Carmel Valley Master Plan Committee.

The committee has been meeting continuously for the last 17 months under the guidance of Planning Commissioner Bill Peters to try to bring the 1966 Carmel Valley Master Plan up to date. The old plan would have permitted an ultimate population of up to 75,000 people in the Valley.

The committee and its subcommittees have come up with some innovative ideas which have not yet been torn to bits by the large property owners and by out-of-town developers who own property in the Valley.

A Petaluma-type growth quota plan has been proposed by the growth management subcommittee of the Master Plan study group. It would limit growth to 200 new residential units per year. Permits would be issued first to those projects that score the most points in a series of criteria that would include environmental quality; site and architectural design; impact on governmental and utility services; contribution to socio-economic diversity; water use, and other criteria. (The proposal is discussed in detail in a recent edition of this newspaper.)

In today's edition, there is an article about still another idea that may have found its time. The Master Plan committee will recommend to the county that some of the highly visible farmland in the Valley be preserved by purchase of development rights. Funds could be raised by a building permit fee on new construction in the Valley or by the imposition of a property tax on Valley residents.

The latter suggestion might not be as far-fetched as it seems at first glance. Who would be willing to pay additional taxes to preserve agricultural land? I think there are many local residents and businessmen who would agree to the imposition of such a tax.

After all, when bond issues and special tax overrides were being defeated all over the state (and the nation), the people of the area voted six years ago to create a park district with taxing powers. That district has purchased the Garland Ranch property in Carmel Valley and is negotiating for the purchase of parcels in other parts of the Peninsula.

And, it was only five or six years ago that the people dug deep into their pockets and raised an astonishing amount of money to help purchase the western portion of the Odello artichoke ranch at the Carmel River mouth. Pensioners pledged portions of their Social Security checks towards the purchase. School children trudged door-to-door to collect money for OLAF and staged fund-raising events to swell the coffers. One lady donated a valuable lot in Pebble Beach. There were scores of similar examples of sacrifice and generosity by concerned citizens of the area. It was an historic effort and a successful one.

IT COULD BE ARGUED that the threat posed by the proposed development of the Odello property was immediate and highly visible. The threat to Carmel Valley is much more abstract and tougher to deal with.

There are presently 20 major developments in various stages of planning for Carmel Valley. If adopted, they would radically alter the rural quality of the precious Valley and probably cause irreparable environmental damage.

If the public is made aware of the dimensions of the threat to the fragile beauty of Carmel Valley and if it is demonstrated that the threat is immediate, I believe people will come forward with offers of financial help. Others will be willing to pay additional taxes to preserve open space.

We will be following the work of the Master Plan committee closely. When the group has a draft plan ready and is prepared to make its recommendations to the Monterey County Planning Commission, we hope our readers will become familiar with its contents.

Then, when county officials begin deliberations, show your support for the concepts embodied in the report of the study group.

Pre-graduation 'must'

Trustees favor skills test

A SYSTEMATIC NEW testing program designed to ensure that all Carmel High School graduates have mastered basic English and mathematics met with a favorable response from the school board last week.

The tests in reading, writing and mathematics will be required of all students after June 30, 1981. It is one of the new "basic skills" requirements included in AB 65, the education reform bill enacted last summer.

District officials admitted that some aspects of the tests are arbitrary and that changes may be made in the future.

But, according to Paul Sheckler, vice-principal at Carmel High School, the task force which prepared the standards and tests believes they represent "what we expect the students to know when they graduate."

The tests will be given beginning in the eighth grade. The students will be re-tested in the 10th and 11th grades. A student needs 80 per cent correct to pass the reading and writing portions of the test, 70 per cent to pass the mathematics portion. He qualifies for a diploma if he passes the proficiency tests and completes the high school graduation requirements.

A student who doesn't pass the tests cannot get a diploma.

Superintendent Harris Taylor told the trustees the tests are "not for comparative purposes. It is not a statewide test. It is a systematic way for us to give some guarantee of catching youngsters and try to bring them up to the standard we are setting for ourselves."

Sheckler said the tests should catch the bottom 40 per cent of eighth grade students for remedial programs in basic skills, and the bottom 20 per cent in high school.

Remedial help includes special counseling with teachers, counselors and parents and special tutoring in basic skills classes.

TRUSTEE CLAYTON NEILL Jr., elected president of the board at the April 12 meeting, questioned why there was no mention of social sciences or science in the proficiency tests. According to Sheckler, the state only has required graduation proficiency in "skills" areas, not "content" courses such as the social sciences.

"Other districts in the state are going beyond the mandate," he told trustees. "Who knows? We may be back with other areas (for testing) next year."

Neill also asked if it would be worthwhile to begin remedial programs in lower grades, before students reach the eighth grade and the first graduation proficiency exam.

Sheckler told the board that under AB 65, such programs are required. One section of the law continues the Early Childhood Education program for grades kindergarten through third, which helps identify the bottom third of students in these grades. Another section of the law is aimed at remedial help for students in grades four to six. Next year, he told the trustees, a proficiency test program will be prepared for these students.

No diploma if they fail it

He added that Carmel is ahead of "95 per cent of the districts" in California because the freshman class will be given the tests next month.

Sheckler said teachers on the administrator-parent-teacher-student task force were adamant that two writing samples be required. So, a brief essay and a business letter are required in the test. The mathematics teachers were equally adamant that students actually work out problems, not just choose answers in a multiple-choice test.

"We'll have to live and die with the high standards we've set," he said.

IN ANSWER to a question from Trustee Frances Gaver, Sheckler said the test is based on what the task force members believe are essential skills, with passing standards based on actual testing of district middle school and high school pupils.

"It may be necessary down the line to make revisions upward or downward," he added.

Taylor said the passing percentages were "an arbitrary target. We can make the test so difficult no one can pass it. We can make it so easy that 99.9 per cent can pass it."

And, he pointed out, a test that 80 per cent of Carmel students can pass might get only a 50 per cent passage rate in another district.

"There is a strong assumption you can make in a system like ours," he told the trustees. Students above the bottom 20 per cent in Carmel are "reaching the national norms."

Ultimately, Sheckler told the board, "you have to have some trust" in the task force which drew up the standards and in its ability to set basic skills requirements which meet the expectations of the community.

RICH HAWKINS, director of pupil personnel and a task force member, said at one point during the task force discussions, someone questioned whether the test might not be too difficult since many students were not passing in the trial runs for the test.

"One teacher finally said he felt these are things the students ought to be able to do, that we should leave them in even if more fail than we think ought to fail," he said. "It's not just numbers or percentages, but what we feel students ought to be able to do."

Trustees will review the recommendations on proficiency standards further before their meeting next Tuesday. They expect to adopt the program at that time, so the present freshman class can be given the tests in May.

The program is expected to cost the district an additional $7,925 at the high school and middle school, according to budget projections by the task force.

An estimated $3,000 will be needed for clerical work and $3,400 to equip a learning skills center at the high school for students in remedial programs. Another $900 will cover pay to teachers and counselors for additional time spent with students who do not pass the competency tests.

Teachers unhappy, but wait on pay demands

Carmel Unified School District teachers will present their contract proposals for 1978-79 to district trustees next month, but will wait until the vote is in on the Jarvis-Gann property tax initiative before pressing for a settlement.

Bruce Stannard, a Middle School teacher and president of the Association of Carmel Teachers, did say the faculty is not happy with a district preliminary budget that includes no across-the-board pay raise.

Walter E. Hinton, assistant superintendent for business services, wrote in his preface to the preliminary budget that pay increases would have to be funded out of contingency money and presented budget projections to show the district barely remaining in the black even if it holds the line on salaries.

"I've seen budget reports for years that say we'll be broke in three years," Stannard said. "Maybe this time it will happen. I know things are tougher for Carmel than ever before. But things change so much with new legislation. Nothing is certain."

The Jarvis-Gann initiative, Proposition 13, would have a dramatic effect on the district. Superintendent Harris Taylor estimated in February that if the initiative passes it would require the dismissal of 49 classroom teachers, elimination of all extra-curricular activities and the closure of two district elementary schools to keep the district budget balanced.

Awaiting the day he's good enough to be a professional magician

RALPH VERDE is one Carmel Valley resident who always has a trick up his sleeve.

Ralph, 15, wants to become a professional magician. And he spends hours practicing for that big day.

It's not that his tricks are astounding. But he is good enough to make you scratch your head and ask, "Did a 15-year-old kid just do that?"

Ralph will place a ball in your hand, tap it twice and another will appear. Although you might catch him reaching in his pockets on the very next trick, his repertoire is mostly satisfying. But the tricks alone do not make his act jell—and he knows it.

"It's not the tricks, but how you perform them," he said. Few magicians boast new tricks. They just take the old ones and jazz them up," he explained.

He has chalked up 30 performances already.

"PEOPLE LOVE being fooled. If everything in life was spelled out for us, think how boring it would be," he said.

But don't ask him how he does it. "For me to devulge the secret to a trick would be giving magic a black eye," he explained.

Adults are easy to fool, Ralph contended. It's the kids who are the hardest to fool. "Kids yell things like, 'Hey, open your other hand,' right in the middle of a trick," he explained.

RALPH STARTED by clipping a coupon. When he was 8, he saw an advertisement in a sports magazine and invested a quarter for a magic catalog. Four years ago, he purchased his first magic set at a local toy store.

He shudders to remember his first shows. At one outdoor birthday party, the audience sat yawning as he illuminated a lightbulb in his hand. It wasn't until later he realized the sunshine obscured the light.

His family won't watch him anymore. They get bored, he said. His father, Sal, owns Verde's Upholstery Shop in Carmel Valley Village. His mother, Pat, is a secretary. His 10-year-old sister, Susan, attends Tularcitos school.

The young magician is seldom without the tools of his trade. "You'll never catch me without a deck of cards," he said.

MAGIC IS a mask. It is taking the laws of nature and disguising them, according to amateur magician Ralph. Here he balances a ball on nothing more than a fold in a handkerchief.

RALPH VERDE can run rings around most other 15-year-old magicians. The Carmel Valley resident became interested in magic when he was eight. He has put on more than 30 performances at clubs and parties. (Michael Stang photos)

THE CARMEL High Padres won two out of three baseball games last week to remain atop the Mission Trail Athletic League standings with a 4-1 record. The Padres, who had won five games in a row prior to last week, ran their streak to seven by defeating Pacific Grove, 7-2, and downing King City, 8-4. However, on Friday afternoon, the Padres' streak was stopped by Gonzales as the Spartans scored four runs in the third and went on to win 9-5.

In that game in Gonzales, the Padres took a 2-0 lead in the first inning as Dave McKenzie was hit by a pitch and Pete Rolfing walked. Singles by Dave Carpenter and Steve Sepersky drove in McKenzie and Rolfing, but Carpenter was thrown out trying to score on Sepersky's hit.

Gonzales cut that margin in half in the bottom of the first on a walk to Juan Jimenez, an error and a run-scoring groundout by Jessie Palacios.

The Spartans scored four runs in the third on a walk, a fielder's choice, a single by Palacios, a two-run double by Walt Avecilla and a two-run single by Dave Counejo.

Gonzales tallied two more runs in the fourth on a walk, a stolen base, an RBI single by Avecilla and a run-scoring single by Palacios. The Padres came back in the fifth with two runs as John Lucido singled, McKenzie tripled and Rolfing singled.

The Padres closed the gap further in the sixth as successive singles by Sepersky, Mike Odello and John Frincke sent Sepersky home with Carmel's final run of the game. With Odello and Frincke on base, Palacios made a shoestring catch of Neil Vandervort's drive to right field to save two runs. John Lucido (2-3) took the loss for Carmel.

THURSDAY against King City, Dave McKenzie had two hits and drove in two runs to lead the Padres to an 8-4 victory. John Frincke and Pete Rolfing also drove in two runs each for Carmel. Steve Sepersky struck out nine and allowed only four hits in 5⅔ innings as he raised his record to 5-0. However, Sepersky ran into trouble in the sixth inning and had to give way to Pat Kelly. Kelly retired the only man he faced and the Padres went on to win easily.

ON TUESDAY of last week against Pacific Grove, the Padres bunched all seven of their runs into the fourth inning as they routed the Breakers, 7-2. Pete Rolfing opened the inning by reaching base on an error and he quickly scored as Steve Sepersky hit a booming homerun over the left centerfield fence. Tom Frincke and Mike Odello followed the homer with singles before Marc Bordonaro grounded out. However, PG shortstop Ricky Vertz made his second error of the inning on a Joe Limov grounder and the Padres jumped on the opportunity. John Lucido singled to send PG pitcher Doug Bitter to the showers in favor of Vertz. Dave McKenzie greeted Vertz with a single and that was followed by a Pete Rolfing walk. Dave Carpenter followed with a single to drive in McKenzie, but centerfielder Mike Rodrigues cut down Rolfing to save a run. Only one of the Padre runs in the inning was earned because of three Breaker errors.

Dave Carpenter had a no-hitter going until the sixth inning when Vertz ripped a single to left. Carpenter struck out seven in the game as he earned the win and raised his record to 3-1.

The Padres travel to King City next Tuesday afternoon.

Valley developments

Preliminary maps go to hearings

PRELIMINARY SUBDIVISION maps for two major Carmel Valley developments are scheduled for evening public hearings next Wednesday before the Monterey County Planning Commission in Salinas.

The first two phases of the Carmel Valley Ranch development and the proposed Vista Nadura development on 1,296 acres of hillside land both will be considered. Vista Nadura is on the agenda at 7 p.m. Carmel Valley Ranch is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. The commission meets in the county courthouse, Alisal and Church Streets.

The preliminary map review determines whether the projects are generally acceptable subdivision designs, according to Wesley Arvig, a member of the planning department staff.

The county subdivision committee, consisting of county staff members from the planning, health, public works and other departments, already has recommended that a full environmental impact report be prepared on the Vista Nadura project.

The same committee has recommended that the overall EIR for the Carmel Valley Ranch development be accepted as the EIR for the first two phases. The phases involve construction of 160 dwelling units.

Vista Nadura is planned as a 220-condominium and a 200-home site development on the old Anita Doud Ranch. The property is on the north slope of Carmel Valley, fronting on Carmel Valley Road, roughly from Schulte Road to the Mid-Valley Shopping Center and extending up the slope to the ridgeline. The property extends behind Carmel Valley Manor.

The developer, Nader Agha of Pebble Beach, would create the homesites and sell them for development by individuals. The condominiums would be built after the homesites are sold.

The property also would have a 14-acre horse center fronting on Carmel Valley Road. An existing barn and house would remain as part of the center.

The developer plans to connect to the California-American Water Co. system or to drill wells on the property for a private water system if the Cal-Am hookup ban is still in effect.

A master septic tank system is envisioned for the condominiums, with individual septic tanks for the homes.

THE CARMEL Valley Ranch phases consist of 140 townhouses and 20 single-family homes to be built on three sites totaling 39.5 acres. An additional 120 acres adjacent to Garland Park would be put into scenic easement with public trails easements, part of an agreement in the overall Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan. The plan was adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors in January 1977 on a 3-2 vote following a series of stormy public hearings.

Only 80 of the planned units could be built per year, according to the specific plan. Eventually, the developers plan to construct 400 homes and townhouses, a 100-unit golf lodge, an 18-hole golf course and clubhouse and a tennis club.

The tennis club is scheduled to open next month. A use permit already has been granted for the golf course, with construction on the course expected to begin within six months.

Under the specific plan, the developers would put 1,200 acres of hillside land under scenic easement with public access by trails, when construction on the property is approved.

Solutions to sewage disposal and water supply problems connected with the development have yet to be worked out. The developer, a subsidiary of Landmark Land Co. of Oklahoma, plans to dispose of effluent on the site as golf course irrigation water, following treatment in a package sewage treatment plant. Project coordinator Kaye Chandler said he will submit specific plans with a tentative subdivision map in two to three months.

There will be 50,000 gallons of effluent generated daily from the first phase of development.

Chandler said water for the units would come from on-site wells, although a tie-in to Cal-Am is possible if the district ends its hook-up ban.

Talks go smoothly on trails to ranch

An agreement for public trails access to the Carmel Valley Ranch property adjacent to Garland Park is about two months away, according to Park Manager Gary Tate.

The agreement will be part of a tentative subdivision map developers will submit to county planning officials. A planning commission hearing on the preliminary map for the project is set April 26 in the board of supervisors' chambers in Salinas.

Regional park district directors reviewed the agreement last Thursday. Tate said further negotiations on maintenance, development and location of the trails, plus the issue of liability in case of injury, must be negotiated.

He said the public access would be limited to the trails themselves, and not the land off the trail. Tate pointed out that the terrain and vegetation would act as a natural barrier in many instances.

Expansion of the trail network is tied to development on the ranch, he said.

Negotiations are "going fairly smoothly," he said.

Park directors also are studying the alternatives for pedestrian access to the park, but have not yet decided whether to construct a temporary or permanent bridge into Garland Park, Tate said. They will use a temporary bridge this summer, however.

A permanent bridge of steel and concrete would cost about $80,000, he said. This would be true whether the bridge is above the 100-year flood level or built closer to the riverbed.

A temporary bridge would cost only $500 to $600 per year to replace. It would consist of culverts covered with gravel. The gravel would wash away when the river rises and the culverts would be attached to cables to keep them from floating away.

The park district has an agreement for use of a private bridge adjacent to the park during wet months when the river bank cannot be crossed on foot.

The directors also submitted an application for federal flood relief funds for the park. The district spent $1,900 rebuilding the river bank at the park and doing other protection work during February and early March. The funds would be allocated through the Federal Disaster Relief Act.

When Uncle Sam Gives You a Break on Taxes,

Take It!

It's possible that last year you could have had substantial tax savings for retirement.
But now it's too late.
That's too bad.
You can do something about it this year . . . before it's too late, and NCS can help with KEOGH or IRA.
If you are self-employed, then KEOGH is the plan for you and your eligible employees.
If you work for someone else, and they have no retirement program, IRA (the Individual Retirement Account) is your answer.
Either way, it means a tax savings for you, and that makes planning your retirement a pushover.
And when it comes to saving . . . for anything, NCS can help.
We're pushovers, too.

Farmland preservation tax is suggested

ving farmland would enhance the value of surrounding homes.

VAN ZANDER said Monday that there is "no way" the development rights could be acquired from the assessment district.

"It's like a scenic easement," he said. "It rests with the board of supervisors. I wouldn't think there could be anything that could break it."

The assessment district itself would only be a financing unit to pay for acquiring the development rights. The district electors could not vote to sell the rights back on the open market, Van Zander said.

STECKLER argued briefly in favor of a plan to have just the building permit fee or some other charge which would affect only new development coming into the Valley and not existing homes or businesses.

"Why tax the people already here?" he asked.

He suggested a fee that is sufficiently expensive to discourage additional growth, thus serving to protect farmland without residents having to pay for it.

If a developer did pay the fee, the money would be used to acquire development rights for additional farmland, according to the plan.

Before voting with the majority, Steckler warned that the farmland preservation plan could backfire and actually make the Valley more desirable for residential builders.

Stressing that the plan would enhance the rural atmosphere in the Valley, Steckler said, "I can't see anything intended more to influence development interests than to permanently secure our beautiful agricultural land."

One alternative to buying development rights would be to rezone the farmland as open space, remarked Planning Commissioner William Peters, the non-voting chairman of the study group.

"That's confiscatory!" said committee member Don Middleton.

It also was pointed out that many farmers look on their Valley land as a retirement "nest egg" because of the development potential and that rezoning would rob them of the asset.

If they were paid for the development potential of the land, they would have that income and the property would then become a perpetual agricultural preserve.

THE COMMITTEE adopted one final recommendation, "a last resort" alternative. If there is no method for acquiring the land or its development rights, the committee said, cluster development should be encouraged on farmland to preserve the greatest amount of open space possible.

The committee rejected a suggestion from Van Zander that developers be given an additional incentive to build cluster housing by doubling the permitted density on the land. He urged that two units per acre be allowed, with development to occur on only 25 per cent of the land area.

"That would permit 200 units on 25 acres and that is not the kind of thing the people of Carmel Valley want," said Mrs. Matthews.

Moser said one unit per acre would be "adequate incentive" because cluster housing next to open space has a value of its own which "makes up the difference in value" between clustered units and single family homes on a one-acre lot.

THE MASTER Plan committee also adopted recommendations for park development in the Valley. On a split vote, they urged that Garland Park be kept in passive use. The park covers 541 acres of hillside and riverfront land adjoining Carmel Valley Road, 8.5 miles east from Highway 1.

Van Zander and others argued that the Valley needs a place like Toro Park, with picnic grounds and grassy areas to "toss a Frisbee, play a little ball, have a barbecue." Toro Park is 4,789 acres on Highway 68, 12 miles from Monterey and five miles from Salinas.

Nancy Burnett of the parks subcommittee said the group "agreed there should be a developed area in the Valley near the river. We disagreed on where it should be."

The subcommittee majority ultimately backed a plan to have these developed park areas near existing schools or the community center.

Mrs. Matthews said the value of Garland Park as a wilderness area would be damaged by having a developed picnic-recreation area on the site.

Committee member Ginnie Drew said "future generations will laud and applaud us" for leaving Garland Park untouched.

The committee endorsed development of Roach Canyon near Del Mesa Carmel as a riding and hiking park; acquisition of land between Tularcitos School and the youth center for a park; purchase of the Little League park in the Village for use as a neighborhood and family park; and use of recreation in-lieu fees received from developers to help acquire and develop an active use park in the Valley.

The Master Plan committee, organized 17 months ago by the board of supervisors, is charged with studying and revising the Carmel Valley Master Plan. The 13 committee members serve on subcommittees studying various aspects of Valley development—water use, roads, sewers, traffic, land use, open space and parks—with the committee as a whole voting on recommendations to the county.

The plan is designed to chart the course of growth and development in the Valley over the next 10 years. When the Master Plan committee finishes its work, the plan goes to the planning commission and board of supervisors for public hearings and final adoption.

The committee is trying to finish its work by May or June.

More than 520 acres of farmland is involved

According to a survey made by the Carmel Valley Master Plan Committee, there are more than 520 acres of farmland in the Valley devoted to row crops, commercial tree farms or pastures which the land use subcommittee felt could be endangered and might be worth preserving.

The list of parcels threatened by development was later trimmed to 370 acres which the subcommittee believes are most susceptible to development. The general parcel locations, their size, the owner and the individual who farms the land are listed below.

• Odello East, adjacent to Highway 1. Owned by the Odello Brothers, farmed by Luis Wolter, 70 acres in row crops.

• Wolter farm, adjacent to Valley Hills Shopping Center on the south side of Carmel Valley Road just east of Quail Lodge and the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Owned by Luis Wolter, 60 acres of row crops.

• Property adjacent to Wolter's farom on the east, owned by Leonard Williams. Farmed by Santos Menjares, 65 acres of row crops.

• Portion of Rancho San Carlos, behind Rancho Canada golf course. Owned by Oppenheimer Ranch, farmer unknown, 100 acres of row crops.

One opinion

Fire insurance, Jarvis and safety

By STEP TYNER

MUCH HAS BEEN said about the effects of the Jarvis-Gann property tax initiative on schools and municipal police and fire departments, but nothing has been published as to how it would affect county service areas and districts.

The one important fact that has been ignored by those commenting "for" or "against" the Jarvis bill is that there is no provision for the funding of any service area or district in the bill. As we are told by those who have carefully analyzed the bill, only bonded indebtedness by a district or group of taxpayers will be recognized, such as utilities or sewers. But there is no way County Service Area 43 or Carmel Highlands or Mid-Valley Fire District or Carmel Village Fire District can be funded through taxation.

Service Area 43 started more than 10 years ago. First, we put in fire hydrants. Then we shared a truck on Carmel Hill with CSA 42. Then we built a fire station on Rio Road (property donated) and added a new class A pumper of our own. Today, we have two class A pumper trucks at Rio Road and share with CSA 42 in a third truck plus two auxiliary vehicles on Carmel Hill. CSA 43 now has more than 30 full-time professional fire fighters and can provide a battalion chief, a training officer and 11 professional firefighters on 24-hour duty. We also provide emergency medical assistance and have been credited with saving lives by administering to people pending arrival of the ambulance.

As a result of this fire protection, the Insurance Service Office, which inspects and gives insurance ratings, has reduced our classification from a 10 down to a four. The only lower rate on the Peninsula is Monterey with a three. The difference between a class 10 and a class four in most cases pays the cost of your fire protection. Ask your agent to give you the difference in these two rates on your home or furnishings. We expect our 1978-79 tax rate to be reduced to 75 cents if the Jarvis bill does not prevent it.

The most important difference, however, is the protection of life and property which we now enjoy in this service area. Its advisory committee is composed of property owners who do not wish to see the Jarvis bill put into effect. It offers nothing to the renter, gives the tax advantage to big business, but most of all, because it does not permit people such as we in CSA 43 to tax ourselves to provide the fire protection and consequent lower fire insurance rates we now have.

(Editor's note: The writer is the chairman of the advisory committee for County Service Area 43, a fire protection district. His article is excerpted from a letter the panel sent to persons who live inside the district. Tyner resides in Carmel Knolls.)

And River Inn

Planners hold up Laureles Lodge expansion

OWNERS OF the Los Laureles Lodge will appeal a Monterey County Planning Commission decision which, in effect, would delay plans for a 71-unit expansion of the Carmel Valley motel.

The commission refused April 12 to permit the environmental impact report process to begin on the project. Instead, it set a hearing for Wednesday, May 10, on the subject of land use and the lodge expansion project. Another proposed motel expansion project, for the Carmel River Inn at Oliver Road and Highway 1, faces a land use hearing the same day because of a similar ruling at the same meeting.

The hearings will determine if the developments are appropriate land uses and consistent with area general plans. If they are ruled to be consistent, then the EIR process can begin.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors will hear the Los Laureles Lodge appeal on Tuesday, May 9, at 1:30 p.m. The lodge developers contend the land use is appropriate and wish to bypass the consistency hearing.

Although the 9.41-acre Los Laureles Lodge property is zoned to allow a lodge with a use permit, the property at Rancho and Carmel Valley Roads is earmarked for rural residential expansion in the present Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Architect William Cranston of Carmel, who argued on behalf of lodge owner John Bulmer at the planning commission hearing, said Tuesday that the Master Plan designation was never questioned before because "the land has always been zoned" to permit the lodge.

The lodge has been on the site since the turn of the century and zoning to allow its continued existence was approved by the county in August 1947, before the Valley itself was zoned.

Cranston said the new units would be phased in, probably about 10 units per year, which he said would reduce the impact of the development.

Carmel Valley Fire District Chief Bill Sims wrote during the review process for the project that 71 new units would mean "an additional burden will be placed on this fire district during the peak usage periods. The absolute necessity for 24-hour staffing of the department will be required."

The volunteer department does not man the firehouse around the clock.

LOS LAURELES Lodge now has 23 residence units. The expansion would include 70 guest units and a home for the resident manager. The lodge plans also call for a swimming pool, meeting rooms and a sauna and exercise room.

Of the existing and planned units, 44 would be housed in two-story structures, 49 in one-story units. The lodge would remain as a seasonal operation, open from March to November.

According to a project summary submitted to the commission by Cranston, 6.53 acres would remain in open space, 69 per cent of the project site. Another 20 per cent would be devoted to parking and roads and 11 per cent covered by buildings.

The Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee recommended against the project because "insufficient data" was submitted and major issues such as fire protection and traffic were not addressed in the project summary. The committee also asked to see exterior building designs.

The Carmel River Inn project site is adjacent to the Carmel River and in the 100-year floodplain. The motel now consists of 22 cottages and a 19-room two-story motel.

CARMEL RIVER Inn developers, headed by attorney Myron Etienne Jr. of Salinas, want to have 8.22 acres of the property rezoned to permit an additional 45 motel rooms. Another 1.36 acres at the rear of the property along the river would be left in open space.

The motel property was flooded in 1968 and planning commissioners questioned whether the motel should be there at all, let alone be allowed to expand.

A use permit for 72 condominiums on the property was rejected by the board of supervisors in August 1973 and a second application for the condominium units was withdrawn by the developer the following April before any action was taken.

The property is indicated for parks use in the Monterey Peninsula Area Plan.

The motel expansion plans call for a swimming pool and four tennis courts in addition to the 45 new rental units.

Henry Miller's watercolors on display at Sur gallery

A retrospective exhibit of the joyous and playful watercolors, etchings and lithographs of Henry Miller will be placed on continuing exhibition at the Coast Gallery in Big Sur, 33 miles south of Carmel.

The works at the Coast Gallery will be given a preview exhibition at the Tel Aviv International Art Fair, April 13-20.

Miller, whose novels were smuggled into the United States beneath the trenchcoats of a generation of college students and literary cogniscenti, has been painting since long before his first book was published.

"Before starting every painting he laughs," says Israeli painter and serigraphist Bezalel Schatz, "mumbling how he doesn't know how to draw (he is lucky to be right) and lets go with joy and a wonderful color sense in the difficult, intricate technique of watercolor (which he is lucky he does know). His paintings possess the unique signature of the man; they comprise a phantasmagoria of figures, symbols, sentences, a well-balanced pell mell that comes out like a song."

Although Miller, who is 88 years old, only lived in Big Sur for the 17 years between 1944 and 1961 with time out for frequent trips abroad, his name has been permanently linked with this very special region of the California coast.

"As a matter of fact I have never left Big Sur, except in the flesh," Miller says. "How could I after living there 17 years and having as dear friends some of the most wonderful individuals one could meet nowhere else in the world. No, everything is still with me—the sea, the whales, the fog, the storms and the everlasting peace.

An unusual event has been planned by the Warm-Up Committee of The Gold Coast Half-Arabian Horse Show. A fashion show for horse show participants, human and equine, will be presented by Hudson and Company of The Barnyard, Carmel, at the Spreckels Veteran Memorial Hall, Wednesday, May 3.

Horse show season is just around the corner. At this time of the year many horse owners want to spruce up themselves, their horses and their act in general in order to bring home some horse show ribbons.

Springtime is nervous-nervous time for the horse shower. "Sure, I've got a good horse, but how do I catch the judge's eye?" There's more to showing a horse than sportsmanship, although that is important. In the tricky game of horse showing, one-up-manship is important, too.

Knowing the annual preshow season tension of the horse show participant and knowing the just plain fascination of the horse show spectator, the Warm-Up Committee chose this irresistible fashion show as a fundraiser.

"We wanted to keep the cost of entry fees down," explained Ginny Frohman, committee chairman. "Also, we didn't want to raise the cost of advertising in the horse show program although our expenses this year must cover the cost of two judges." The 10th Annual Gold Coast Half-Arabian Horse Show is scheduled July 8 and 9 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

And what a benefit show the committee has planned! Starting with a no-host bar at 6:30 p.m., guests at the gala evening will be served a gourmet dinner at 7:30. There will be entertainment during dinner: a trio of local light opera stars will belt out (What else at a horse show benefit?) show tunes. Pianist Pauline Thomas will accompany the singers and the fashion show.

An amazing group of well-known horse people—trainers, riders, just plain horselovers, and not-so-plain just lovers—will model. They will show correct attire for every phase of the horse show spectrum including hunt seat equitation, hunters and jumpers, stock seat equitation, western pleasure, versatility, saddle seat, parade, park horse, halter classes, dressage and side saddle.

Some of the models have never been seen dismounted before. It will be fun to see these top show people showing themselves instead of their horses.

Would you believe Ray Hackworth on two feet instead of four? It's going to be worth the price of admission to see if he'll come in at a flat-out gallop and do a sliding stop.

Al Tedrow, long known for his good half-Arabs, will hereafter be known as a clothes horse. Also showing clothes and accessories will be Jean Jet of Saratoga, whose young students are known as "The Jet Set"; Joyce Wyman, horse show mother extraordinaire, whose daughter Robin is current queen of C.S.H.A. Region Ten; Mary Moiso, whose "perfect dressage figure" lends elegance to any outfit; Patience Prine, local light of the Arab horse scene; and Riley Wilson.

Beth McCurry, best known as the mother of pony champion Billy Sunday, will be on stage as will Kim Blocher, a top junior rider; Ginger Lindsay, who has won numerous prizes as a parader; Salinas trainer Bill Melendez; and the internationally known young trainer from Oak Hill Ranch in Hidden Hills, John Frank.

Hudson and Company will also display an assortment of tack suitable for various horse show classes. Commentator for the show will be Ginny Frohman who has intimidated her share of horse show judges and can tell others how to do it.

Reservations at $12.50 (tax deductible) are going fast. Information can be obtained by phoning 372-6823 or 1-455-1940.

Aviation Exposition this weekend at Monterey airport

A NASA display of moon rocks will be one of the highlights of the Monterey Aviation Exposition Friday-Sunday, April 21-23, at the Monterey Peninsula Airport, east of Monterey on Highway 68. Hours are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. each day.

Also on display will be aircraft and aviation equipment from many manufacturers, one of the two 1928 Ford tri-motors in existence and a craft show of aviation-related arts and crafts.

The Ford tri-motor will be used for sightseeing trips around the Monterey Bay area.

NASA will present several seminars about the moon rock, and also about a quiet aircraft prototype which is expected to be displayed at the 1979 Monterey Aviation Exposition. Federal Aviation Administration representatives and aircraft equipment manufacturers will also present seminars during the three-day show.

Tickets, at $2, are good for admission to all three days of the show. For more information, phone 373-3731.

After a 12-year hiatus, the Fiesta de Los Amigos will return to Carmel Valley on Saturday, May 6. Festivities will run all day and into the night, beginning with a parade through Carmel Valley Village and ending with a formal ball at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors granted a permit for the parade to the sponsoring Carmel Valley Women's Club Tuesday. The hour-long march through the Village will begin at 10:30 a.m. at Del Fino Place and Pilot Road and wind down Carmel Valley Road and then up Flight Road, ending at Poppy Road.

Featured in the parade will be the Monterey County Sheriff's Mounted Posse, the Fort Ord 7th Infantry Division Band, plus antique cars, youth organizations and other mounted groups.

Following the parade, there will be food on sale and a full program of free activities at the Holman Guest Ranch from noon to 5 p.m. Included will be a demonstration of stained glassmaking and performances by square dance and choral groups. Strolling mariachi musicians will entertain.

The Gala Spanish Ball will begin at 8 p.m. at the country club. Entry to the ball is by reservation, with tickets priced at $5 per person. Attendance is limited to 250 persons. Tickets are available from Shirley Sargeant at 625-2731.

A door prize of two round-trip tickets from Monterey to Orange County has been offered by Air California. Dancing to the music of Mike Marotta will last until 2 a.m.

All of the events are being sponsored by the Carmel Valley Women's Club. The group is reviving the fiesta for the first time since 1966. It was first held in 1949. The affair aims to involve "everybody in the Valley," according to Dorothy Trevino, publicity chairman for the event.

People are encouraged to come to the parade and the guest ranch in costumes reflecting the history of Carmel Valley—everything from Indian garb to cowboy, ranchero, padre or bandit outfits.

"This has been a big event in the past," said Mrs. Trevino. "It should be a lot of fun."

Funds raised by the fiesta will go to support charitable activities of the women's club, particularly youth programs, she said.

THE CLEVELAND QUARTET has been engaged for a performance Jan. 6, 1979, as a highlight of the season for the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula. Membership applications for the 1978-79 season are now available.

Boat races in Monterey

Four classes of sailboats will race in the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club's annual Commodore's Regatta on Monterey Bay Saturday and Sunday, April 22-23.

Starting time is at 1 p.m. each day. The race will begin and end at Wharf #2. The exact course will depend on the wind.

Spectators may watch the races from Fisherman's Wharf, Cannery Row or other points along the bay.

Commentator Charles Kuralt to speak at Hartnell Thursday

Award-winning TV reporter Charles Kuralt's journeys through the byways of America will take him to Salinas Thursday, April 20, for a free lecture at 8 p.m. at the Hartnell College Performing Arts Theatre, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. The lecture title is The American Behind the Headlines.

During the past decade, Kuralt has traveled America's back roads searching out unique Americans who are the subjects of his On the Road reports shown weekly on the CBS Evening News.

His search takes Kuralt more than 40,000 miles each year, into every state in the union. Among the stories he has found and filmed have been a 92-year-old brick-maker; an Iowa farmer who had never seen the ocean but built a yacht and plans to said around the world; and a swimming pig.

Although his television appearances have resulted in celebrity status, Kuralt still enjoys surprises, such as the Florida housewife, who, upon seeing his large CBS mobile home, promptly ordered two loaves of rye bread.

Everyone is welcome to attend the free program.

Lyceum auditions Saturday

The Carmel Chapter of the American Field Service will sponsor the premiere of the play "Catch Me If You Can" in a special fund-raising event at the Studio Theatre in Carmel Thursday, April 27.

The play begins at 8:30 p.m. and will be preceded by a "Marvelous Mystery Wine Fest" at the theater at 7 p.m.

Money from the event will go toward the AFS international scholarship program, which enables Carmel High School students to study abroad and brings students here to spend a school year.

Current exchange students here are Annette Norden of Germany and Peter Hauri of Switzerland. Jill Ricketts, a Carmel High School senior, left in February for a year in Arequipa, Peru.

A donation of $25 entitles the buyer to two patron seats, good for the play and the wine fest. Deadline for reservations is tomorrow, April 21. Tickets may be reserved by phone with Mrs. William Sanford, fund-raising chairman, or Mrs. Kirk Hiaasen, president of the Carmel AFS chapter.

"Catch Me If You Can" is a mystery comedy, directed by Bill Asp and starring Greg and Sylvia Niebel, Alex Lopukhin and Jim Jensen. The play will open for regular performances Friday, April 28.

Forest Theater tryouts set for 'Henry IV' production

Auditions for the Forest Theater Guild summer production of Henry IV, Part 1 are scheduled Saturday and Sunday, April 22-23, at the Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Hours are noon-4 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday.

The play will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings from Aug. 3 through Sept. 2 at the outdoor Forest Theater.

Richard Geer, who directed last summer's production of Twelfth Night, says there are many roles for men of all ages and three speaking roles for women. No roles have been pre-cast.

Volunteers are also needed for set building, costume sewing, publicity, lighting and stage crew.

College credit, through Monterey Peninsula College, is available to those who work in the production.

For more information, phone Forest Theater Guild president Jeff Hudelson, 624-2179.

County put 'on notice'

The Carmel Unified School District has put Monterey County "on notice" that it wants its fair share of federally subsidized CETA jobs when the county allocates the positions this summer.

659-2222
on call
24 hours
CARMEL VALLEY ANSWERING SERVICE
ART DUNN OWNER-MANAGER

District Superintendent Dr. Harris Taylor told district trustees last week that he has written the county asking for some of the jobs. The district has received only one position, and that in 1974, under the program.

CETA, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, pays the salary of an employee for up to 18 months of on-the-job training. After that, a government or private entity is expected to continue the position and hire the CETA employee full-time out of its own funds.

Taylor told the trustees that Carmel had been looked on as a privileged district, wealthy enough for the county to ignore in favor of other jurisdictions which might need the CETA assistance more.

Dump site debated in Valley Village

THE MONTEREY County Planning Commission is looking for alternatives to a Carmel Valley Village site for a proposed recycling center and trash transfer facility.

A use permit for the center has been requested by Carmel Valley Disposal Service Inc. The proposed site is on Pilot Road between Carmel Valley Road and Via Contenta, where the company now keeps some of its trucks.

The company claims the center would permit the recycling of glass, aluminum, used oil, cardboard and paper. According to Sabastian Bordonaro, the Carmel architect working on plans for the center, it would save energy, reduce pressure on the Marina dump and help stabilize trash collection rates in the Valley.

But neighbors have complained that the center could attract flies and rodents, be a neighborhood eyesore and generate additional dust and noise because of increased traffic to the site.

The commission will decide May 31 if the center will need an environmental impact report. If not, Carmel Valley Disposal can immediately seek a use permit.

Commissioner William Peters is helping in the search for an alternative site, according to Bordonaro. He said the commissioners "felt there is a need for a recycling center" when they first heard the case on April 12. The questions they raised were whether the Village site is best suited to the project.

BORDONARO SAID a recycling-transfer center would have to be "near a main thoroughfare and centrally located," so company trucks and the public would have easy access. The site under consideration is away from the main commercial area of the Village, he said, and is across the road from a parking lot used for Carmel Unified School District buses.

According to Bordonaro, disposal company trucks would collect trash on their regular rounds and bring it to the transfer station. Residents would be encouraged to sort out glass, cans and newspapers to help with the recycling effort.

At the center, recyclable items would be put in separate bins and the remaining trash would go into an on-site compactor. Bordonaro said the compactor would emit "only a hum" and would crush the trash down to one-fourteenth of its original volume.

Reducing the trash volume could save the company four or five trips a day to the Marina dump, Bordonaro said, resulting in a saving of energy. Because the trash has been compacted, it also would take up less space.

He added that the recycling operation could help stabilize collection rates. Bordonaro said additional income and energy savings from the transfer station would mean that the present $4.60 per month residential rate could be frozen until 1980. After that, annual increases would be less than the 10 per cent rise in the cost of operations, he said.

According to the project description, recyclable trash would not be stored at the site for more than a few days and additional landscaping would be planted around the perimeter of the fenced property to screen the facility.

PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS could bring trash to the center for recycling and hauling to the main dump. Individuals who bring in enough recyclable materials would be paid for the items, according to the project description.

Bordonaro emphasized that no garbage would be taken to the transfer station. This sort of refuse, generated primarily by restaurants and other commercial establishments, would be taken directly to the dump.

In other planning matters, the commission approved a use permit April 12 for a new pre-school classroom at All Saints' Episcopal Church on Carmel Valley Road west of Schulte Road.

The additional space is needed to make more space in the upper grade classrooms. The pre-school will have 1,000 square feet of floor space.

The commission also will consider a negative declaration of environmental impact for a larger residential care facility in Carmel Valley Village to be operated by the Behavioral Sciences Institute of Monterey.

The present building houses six adolescent girls. The new plan calls for replacing the existing home with a two-story building to handle 20 boys and girls. The building would be located at the present site, on the southwest corner of Via Contenta and Pilot Road.

Comment asked on condo plan

The public will have one more chance to comment on a proposed 25-unit townhouse project in Carmel Valley Village before the project environmental impact report goes to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors for certification.

The comment session on the EIR will be on Friday, April 21, at 10 a.m. in the supervisors' chambers in Salinas. Additional written comments on the report will be accepted there or during the following three days.

Village Houses, the project under consideration, would consist of 25 attached dwelling units at the corner of Ford and Carmel Valley Roads on a 4.29-acre parcel.

The developers, Bernard Friedman, David Allen Smith and Bud Evenson, want to build 12 one-story, three-bedroom units, six two-story, two-bedroom units and seven two-story, three-bedroom units. Daniels and House Construction Co. of Monterey would be the contractor. Access would be from Ford Road only, with open space and a public walkway planned along the southern and western borders of the property.

Forty-five per cent of the land area would be landscaped.

A master septic tank would serve the units, with water supplied through an existing two-inch meter by California-American Water Co.

The parcel is zoned for planned commercial development and would have to be rezoned.

Once the EIR is ruled legally complete by the county counsel's office, a hearing on certification will be set before the board of supervisors.

Wm. Rice dead at 89

William R. Rice, a 14-year Carmel Valley resident, died Thursday, April 13, at Skyline Convalescent Hospital in Monterey following a brief illness. The retired stockbroker was 89.

A Harrisburg, Pa., native, Rice resided at Hacienda Carmel. He was a stockbroker for Reynolds and Co. in San Francisco before his retirement in 1958 at age 70. Prior to that, he worked in Shanghai, China, for 15 years with the West Coast Life Insurance Co.

A U.S. Army veteran of World War I, Rice was a former member of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco and the Menlo Country Club in Woodside.

Survivors include his widow Gertrude of Carmel Valley; daughter Mrs. Louis Larsen of Sunland; sister Ruth Guest of New Jersey; and three grandchildren.

Private cremation was arranged by Paul Mortuary.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Chief Engineer, Room 5101, Transportation Building, 1120 N Street, Sacramento, California, until 2 o'clock p.m. on May 3, 1978, at which time they will be publicly opened and read in the Assembly Room of said building, for construction on State highway in accordance with the specifications therefor, to which special reference is made, as follows:

Monterey County, at 1.6 miles north of Big Creek (05-Mon-1-29.9), retaining wall to be constructed and road to be surfaced.

Bids are required for the entire work described herein.

Plans, specifications, and proposal forms for bidding this project can only be obtained at the office of the Chief Engineer, Transportation Building, Sacramento, California, and may be seen at the offices of the Chief Engineer at Sacramento, and the District Directors of Transportation at Los Angeles, San Francisco, and the district in which the work is situated.

The successful bidder shall furnish a payment bond and a performance bond.

The Department of Transportation hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in wage rates predetermined by the response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, or national origin in consideration for an award.

Minimum wage rates for this project as predetermined by the Secretary of Labor are set forth in the special provisions. If there is a difference between the minimum Secretary of Labor and the prevailing wage rates determined by the State for similar classifications of labor, the Contractor and his subcontractors shall pay not less than the higher wage rate.

Pursuant to Section 1773 of the Labor Code, the general prevailing rate of wages in the county in which the work is to be done has been determined and the Department has listed these wage rates in the Department of Transportation publication entitled General Prevailing Wage Rates, dated April, 1978.

All workers told to report suspected child abuse

ALL CARMEL School District employees will be required to report suspected child abuse cases to school and county authorities under a new policy approved by district trustees on Wednesday, April 12.

Under current state law, principals, teachers, school nurses and all certificated employees of school districts make a report to local police, juvenile authorities or other county officials in such cases.

But the policy, presented for a first reading Tuesday, would require all other employees to report suspected child abuse cases as well.

Rich Hawkins, district director of pupil personnel, told the trustees that the new policy also will provide a formal method for filing such reports and seeing that the proper authorities are notified.

Under state law, a certificated employee who fails to report child abuse can be fined $500 and given a six-month jail term if the child is subsequently injured.

The policy notes that, "The guiding principle for handling all situations is maximum protection for the possibly abused or neglected minor plus supportive, humane treatment of parent or other adult suspected of child abuse."

SUPT. Harris Taylor pointed out to the trustees that a report by a district employee does not mean that there has been an actual case of child abuse.

Child abuse is defined in the policy as physical injury or sexual molestation or exploitation by the parent or other person responsible for the supervision of the youth under 18.

Child neglect also is covered in the policy. A child under 18 who is harmed by neglect, malnutrition, lack of basic physical care—including medical and dental care—or who is growing up under conditions which threaten his physical and emotional survival is defined as a neglected child under the policy.

HAWKINS, in an interview last week, said that the district has become involved in more child abuse cases in recent years. He attributed this to greater sensitivity among district personnel to the symptoms of abuse, not to a rise in incidents.

Since April 1977, the district staff has reported six child abuse cases. Hawkins said there was only one case reported in his first five years with the district and only two or three in the following two years.

He said the district has been involved in more than 10 cases in the past year, including those reported by others where the district helps in the investigation.

But, Hawkins noted, there could be "two to three times that many that we don't know of."

Neglect and emotional abuse are particularly difficult to prove, he said.

Sexual abuse often will go unreported, he said, with perhaps "three or four times" as many incidents as the two the district learned about in the past year.

Don Zahn dead at 68

Funeral services were conducted last weekend for Donald Frederick Zahn of Carmel Valley, who died Friday at Community Hospital following a long illness. He was 68.

The Chicago native had lived for 30 years in Phoenix, Ariz., where he was vice president and secretary-treasurer PBSW, a school and office furniture supply company. Zahn moved to Del Mesa Carmel a year ago.

Zahn was a member of the Bethany Bible Church in Phoenix; Christian Businessmen's Association; Kiwanis Club of Phoenix; and Gideon International.

Survivors include his widow Helen of Carmel Valley; daughter Donna Eppler of Carmel Valley; brother Eugene Zahn of Florida; and one grandson.

The family suggests memorials be sent to the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

A memorial service will be arranged at Bethany Bible Church in Phoenix at a later date. Farlinger Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.
